A healthy partnership

Spirit Data Capture delivers Sumo's mobile solutions to the NHS

York, UK: Sumo Healthcare and Spirit Data Capture Ltd have joined forces to provide a wide selection of mobile devices to the UK healthcare market. Spirit will supply Sumo's versatile range of medical-grade PCs, tablets and smartphones.

Sumo's products are targeted specifically at the healthcare sector and include smartphones that are designed for a clinical environment. These use anti-microbial materials and have high ingress protection (IP) ratings, enabling them to be cleaned with soap and water. Due to the materials used, they can also be cleaned with disinfectant wipes and cleaning chemicals.

Simon Philpott, Business Development Manager of Sumo Technologies, comments: "This collaboration benefits from Spirit's expertise in hardware, software and managed services and our exemplary record of supplying digital technologies to the NHS. Together we can help all facets of our health and social care services to address their part of the NHS Digital Transformation programme."

Spirit's Marketing Director, Katrina Evans, shares this view: "As a company specialising in mobile enterprise management, we provide solutions and expertise to many government organisations, including the NHS. In Sumo we have a partner that can provide equipment that is ideal for this challenging environment and that complements the other products and services that we already supply."

Spirit (www.spiritdatacapture.com) provides a range of mobile solutions and services to a wide array of industry, commerce and government sectors. Sumo Healthcare (www.sumohealthcare.com) is a division of Sumo Technologies. It was formed in 2018 to focus on supplying its range of smartphones, tablets, and battery-powered PCs to the NHS.
